An IUPUI Tradition

IUPUI has sent 59 women faculty and staff members to this prestigious institute since 1987. Nearly half of those continue to work at IUPUI in leadership capacities. It is an excellent opportunity to prepare for administrative leadership positions and develop a national and international network of colleagues plus focus on your professional development. Any full-time IUPUI faculty or staff member may apply for the IUPUI funding.

IUPUI Application Process

Interested candidates for the IUPUI funding should prepare a letter identifying your 1) immediate and long-term professional objectives, 2) how you think attendance at the Institute will help you achieve your objectives, 3) how your attendance could benefit the campus and 4) what supervisor has agreed to sponsor and co-fund your application. Send this letter and a copy of your CV/Resume (no more than 5 pages) to Kathleen Grove, director, IUPUI Office for Women, ksgrove@iupui.edu, by Monday, September 30, 2019 by midnight.

A committee of HERS Institutes' alums on campus will screen candidates and make recommendations regarding the selection to the Executive Vice Chancellor. Once candidates have been selected, the Office for Women will assist the candidate in completing the online application and gathering the appropriate recommendation letters. (Please note that the official application to HERS requires two letters of support. One will be required from the executive vice chancellor and the second must be from your direct supervisor or sponsor.)

Applicants for IUPUI funding are welcome to set up an account on the HERS website and begin the application process to know what is required for the HERS formal application: <https://www.hersnetwork.org/programs/hers-institute/>
